

Federal Funding Opportunities for Tribal Water Access and the UACW Funding Handbook

November 21, 2024, 3–4 pm

Webinar hosted by University of Arizona in partnership with Universal Access to Clean Water
TRIBALCLEANWATER.ORG

The Initiative on Universal Access to Clean Water (UACW) for Tribal Communities was established to tackle the critical issue of insufficient access to basic drinking water services in Tribal households. In this webinar, the UACW team will explore how Tribes can leverage this historic funding to meet their community needs. The webinar is intended for Tribal communities, students, professors, researchers, and staff who are focusing on challenges, solutions, and initiatives related to Tribal water justice.

Join us to hear how tribal communities can gain federal funding for water access, climate mitigation and adaption on Tribal Lands.

Speakers include:

From University of Arizona

Dr. Andrea Gerlak, Udall Center

Dr. Karletta Chief, Indigenous Resilience Center

Dr. Paloma Beamer, West Environmental Justice Center

Professor Kathy Jacobs, Center for Climate Adaptation Science and Solutions

From UACW

Dr. Heather Tanana, Initiative Lead

Dr. Amy McCoy, Core Team Member

REGISTER HERE TO SAVE YOUR SPOT!

Photo: JoAnn Smith

Udall Center
for Studies in Public Policy

Arizona Institute for Resilience
Center for Climate Adaptation Science & Solutions
Indigenous Resilience Center
Agnese Nelms Haury Program in Environment
& Social Justice

In partnership with
The Initiative on Universal Access to Clean Water for Tribal Communities